

Alex R. Fischer

Alex Fischer is the President and CEO of the Columbus Partnership, a civic organization of Columbus, Ohio's top business leaders formed in 2002 to improve the economic and cultural base of Central Ohio. The Partnership is helping to lead the Columbus2020! economic development effort which is a collaboration of regional economic development organizations. The Partnership has 43 members including 15 Fortune 1000 CEOs, as well as the leaders of the nation's largest university and world's largest research and development organization.

Previously Fischer was Senior Vice President for Business and Economic Development for Battelle headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, and served on the company's Executive Committee and as a corporate officer. His responsibilities included commercialization of Battelle's technologies including the six national laboratories managed or co-managed by Battelle. In this role, he served as one of the primary interfaces with Battelle Ventures and Battelle's other venture capital investments. Fischer also oversaw the office of Public Affairs and Government Relations, Battelle's Economic Development programs, as well as Business Development activities. In this post, he spearheaded Battelle's successful bid of the National Renewable Energy Laboratory as well as the UK's new National Nuclear Laboratory.

Fischer was previously the Director of Technology Transfer and Economic Development for UT-Battelle at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL) where he oversaw tremendous growth in commercialization activities, the development of a new Science and Technology Park on the ORNL campus, the implementation of a technology-focused venture capital fund with local business leaders, and the launch of the successful Global Venture Challenge business plan competition.

Before joining Battelle, Fischer served as the Deputy Governor and Chief of Staff to Tennessee Governor Don Sundquist. In this position, he served as the principal advisor to the Governor on all matters of the State of Tennessee including the oversight of the 22 agencies of state government.

Prior to his service as Deputy Governor, Fischer served as the Commissioner of the Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development (ECD). During Fischer's tenure, the State of Tennessee set numerous economic development investment records including more than $40 billion of new capital investment and was named "State of the Year" for its economic development accomplishments.

During his service in state government, Fischer acted as the primary state-liaison in the development of the successful bid by the University of Tennessee and Battelle for the $5 billion management contract for the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

Fischer was the co-founder of Comprehensive Community Care, a behavior health company, the Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Akins and Tombras Public Relations, the founding Executive Director of Technology 2020 (a technology incubator in Oak Ridge, Tennessee) and the Director of Planning for the Tennessee Technology Foundation.

A native of Hendersonville, Tennessee, Fischer graduated from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville with a bachelor's degree in economics and a master's degree from the school of Architecture and Planning. Fischer has been active on numerous for-profit boards and community organizations including serving as the past Chairman of Veloycs, OmniViz and the SunTrust Bank of East Tennessee Board of Directors. He currently serves on the boards of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Experience Columbus, Campus Partners, Nationwide Children's Hospital, Nationwide Children's Hospital Invitational, RiverSouth Authority, and SciTech.

He has been honored with several community service awards including the Postman Medal for his outstanding leadership in Business and Government. He has two children, Ethan and Anna, and currently resides in the city of Columbus.
