

Terry Foegler

Associate Vice President, Physical Planning and Real Estate

The Ohio State University

Since rejoining The Ohio State University in September of 2010, Terry became the first person to hold this new position providing university-wide leadership in planning and development for Ohio State's physical environment. He champions the recently completed One Ohio State Framework, translating the vision and principles into action, and oversees the University's planning and real estate activities. Terry had served previously with the University from 1996-2008, when he was the President of Campus Partners and the Science and Technology Campus Corporation. As the President of Campus Partners, Terry led the development of the South Campus Gateway and spearheaded the University's efforts to improve the University-area neighborhoods. Prior to rejoining OSU this past September, Terry was the City Manager of Dublin, Ohio where he had previously served as the City's Director of Development from 1990-1996. Terry brings to his new position over thirty years of diverse management experience in a wide array of both public and private sector positions in planning, real estate development, economic development, neighborhood revitalization, and city management.
