

The New International Terminal at Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport Featuring Jim Drinkard

PLACE & TIME

HJAIA Technical Support Campus
1255 South Loop Road, College Park, Georgia 30337

Wednesday, March 14, 2012
11:30 a.m. – 1:30 p.m.

Join us for a presentation and tour of the new International Terminal at Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport. Jim Drinkard, Assistant General Manager, will discuss what this new terminal means for the City.

Jim Drinkard has more than 30 years of airport planning and engineering experience and began his career as a design engineer working on the original midfield design for Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport in 1977.

He returned to Hartsfield-Jackson in 2000 as a consultant planning manager prior to his current appointment as assistant general manager. Drinkard also served as co-director of Planning for the Department of Aviation with primary focus on the $6 billion Capital Improvement Program.

The New International Terminal at Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta

In 2000, the City of Atlanta and Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport announced plans to move forward with a capital development program. The ambitious program included a new international terminal that would enhance the Airport's capacity and meet forecasted operational demands well into the 21st century.
