City Creek Center Preview: Presentation and Walking Tour

DATE: Tuesday, March 20, 2012
TIME: 7:30 am check-in, 8:00 to 10:00 am presentation and walking tour
LOCATION: the Alta Club • 100 E South Temple St. • Salt Lake City 84111

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

ULI Utah is pleased to announce one of the few opportunities to preview City Creek Center before opening day. Breakfast at the Alta Club and a presentation by Bill Williams and Ron Loch will be followed by a guided walking tour of the project.

City Creek Center opens March 22, 2012 at 10 a.m. The center is located in the heart of downtown Salt Lake City, just blocks from the intersection of Interstate 15 and Interstate 80 and a 15-minute drive from the Salt Lake City International Airport. The centerpiece of a sustainably designed urban community, City Creek Center will feature a unique shopping environment with a retractable roof, a creek winding through the property, a pedestrian skybridge, fountains and more. Anchored by Macy’s and Nordstrom, the world-class fashion and dining destination will offer approximately 80 stores and restaurants in a casual, walkable environment. For information and updates, visit www.ShopCityCreekCenter.com.

ABOUT THE PRESENTERS

William R. Williams, Director - Architecture and Engineering, City Creek Reserve, Inc.
 Bill Williams is responsible for overall architectural and engineering design for the City Creek redevelopment project in the heart of downtown Salt Lake City. Adjacent to both the Salt Palace Convention Center and Temple Square, City Creek is a walkable, sustainably-designed urban community of residences, offices and retail stores on nearly 20 acres across three blocks. Upon project completion in early 2012, Salt Lake will be one of few cities in the nation with a vibrant, mixed-use development at its core.

City Creek is one of 60 LEED for Neighborhood Development (LEED ND) pilot projects in the country selected to participate in a focus group to help the U.S. Green Building Council finalize its new LEED ND certification process. Additionally, City Creek’s four new residential towers are expected to qualify for some level of LEED NC (New Construction) certification.

City Creek Center Preview: Presentation and Walking Tour

Bill's 28 years of diversified architectural experience includes directing design for temples and special projects for the physical facilities department of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; 15 years with Portland-based Zimmer Gunsul Frasca and early experience with Wallace Roberts & Todd in Philadelphia. A Registered Licensed Architect in the states of Pennsylvania and Utah, Bill is a graduate of the University of Arizona with a Bachelors of Architecture, and a masters degree in Architecture and Urban Design from the University of Pennsylvania.

Ron Loch, Vice President of Planning and Design, now in his 24th year with Taubman.

His roles and responsibilities include:

- Creating unique concepts and master planning for all new development projects.
- Leading the design team in establishing a vision and unique sense of place for each development.
- Provide leadership and guidance to the Taubman Asia team for all planning & design developments internationally.

Ron has led the retail planning and design efforts for City Creek Center, a mixed-use development located on Main Street in the heart of Salt Lake City's central business district. This project is a collaboration between Taubman and CCRI, a development arm of the LDS Church.

He was also involved in the master planning of the retail portion for MGM's City Center, an $8.5 billion dollar mixed use project on Las Vegas Boulevard.

Ron is a licensed architect and a member of the American Institute of Architects. Additionally, he is a member of the Urban Land Institute, and the International Council of Shopping Centers. Ron holds a Bachelor of Science degree in architecture from Lawrence Technological University in Southfield, Michigan.
